Kristina Mesaroš (*1981)

completed her study of free graphics in the studio of Vojtech Kolenčik at the Academy of Fine Arts and Design (VŠVU) in Bratislava at the beginning of the new millennium – at a time, when young painting in Slovakia had its viewers and numerous protagonists. As a trained graphic designer, she found her way to painting on her own and, perhaps as a result of that individualism, she now belongs to the significant phenomena of contemporary Slovak painting. Her artwork is characteristic of strong independent authentic expression, without following current trends and tendencies in art. In her artwork, she does not reflect any external. i.e. political, social or societal events. She is among those artists focusing more on internal personal testimony.

Her beginnings on the art scene were not easy, as she did not have the backup and support an academy painting studio can provide. The turning point came in 2008, when she became one of the final twenty in the prestigious competition VÚB Painting of the Year. At that time, shortly after returning to Asia, she created her first comprehensive series of Hunters and Pickers (2008). A year later, she repeatedly scored in the competition of VÚB Painting of the Year and, also became a finalist in the Viennese Strabag Artaward International.

Paintings of Kristina Mésároš are mainly based on stories. In her work, she is often exploring the idea of finding inner freedom and the meaning of life through poetic fantasy scenes in which an important role is played by the natural environment and in it a hidden hint of previous or future events. In her painting, she inserts stories of specific places that are normally unknown or only work in relation to a personal memory or fact taken out of its original context. Her own impressions and memories inspire her to poetry saturated scenes, in which an important role is played by the interaction of the environment with the human figure. The country of motifs is always changing, but the sense of imaginative narrative remains present throughout her work. Paintings where the natural background of the scene becomes a self-supporting element are an expression of a distinctive, enthusiastic passion for the possibilities of painting techniques (flushing, snorting, wash). Paintings of Kristina Mésároš consist of a combination of several approaches linking personal authenticity, at times certain naivety of ideas and artistic sensitivity and innovation in the creation process. She is inviting us to unleash those places in your mind that can perceive beauty of unnoticed details, decrypt metaphorical language and treasure short, fast-fleeting moments.

„I am a silent observer, an admirer of nature. Man seems to me as a weak link in the whole system. He is capable of destroying a lot of things, or vice versa, sometimes he is just a drop in the ocean, powerless against the elements of nature.“

„I've loved the forests since I was little. I would often go there alone for walks as a child. I would search for swamps or any body of water. The nature calmed me down, it gave me an opportunity and space to think. It was often a sanctuary or a place where the possibilities to create my own world were simply endless.“
